NORMAN — Max, a yellow lab, was picked up along the side of state Highway 77 near the Super C Mart in Noble just before Christmas. He wasn't wearing a collar; no one has called looking for him and efforts to find his owners have been unsuccessful.

"He's really friendly," said Keith Springstead, chief of Noble Police.

Jarod Cox, Animal Control Officer, describes Max as an unneutered, 2-3 year old energetic male with no particular identifying markers.

"He's friendly to other dogs and friendly to people," Cox said, although he hasn't been observed around cats.

Max can be seen at the Noble Animal Shelter Monday through Thursday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. To make an appointment to see Max or any of the animals at the shelter, call the Noble Police Department at 872-9231 and ask for animal control.

"He's such a great dog we just can't put him down," Chief Springstead said. "He needs a home."
